As women, we should never think that our role in the Church is a lesser role than that played by men. Just as we as righteous women honor the priesthood, we need to hold sacred our calling as women as well. . . . [Relief Society] grew out of our divine calling and our desire to serve, to love, and to care for each other.

On Being Led.

I wish to be treated like I'm worth all that my Father intended for me.

I long to be guided, protected, led with warmth and caring.

Firmly but firm in the knowledge I am respected.

"Women in the Church are associates with their brethren in carrying forward this mighty work of the Lord. . . . They stand in an associate role to the priesthood, all striving together to build the kingdom of God in the earth. We honor and respect you for your capacity. We expect leadership, and strength, and impressive results from your management of the organizations for which you are responsible. We uphold and sustain you as daughters of God, working in a great partnership to assist him in bringing to pass the immortality and the eternal life of all of the sons and daughters of God"

(**"If Thou Art Faithful," Ensign, Nov. 1984, 89*).

I rejoice to follow one who is confident within his own abilities, his stewardship.

I live to serve our Lord together, willing to accept, to respect one another as sister, daughter, brother, son of our shared Father.
